MEMPHIS APPEAL.

JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE.

Whatever concerns this "noble Roman," is of public interest. The mention of his name inspires a thrill of sympathy wherever it is even whispered. The popular ear is ready to catch the sound, and echo it, howsoever lightly it may be breathed. Is not this fame? Why should such virtue and manliness and comprehension mind and heart be continued in exile? Can a country live and prosper, with the best and bravest and brightest of her sons still in banishment? Lift up the curtain of the Past, and behold the ruins. Mark what led to the decline—what precipitated the fall. It is enough that examples are scattered broadcast along the pathway of time. Shall they be to us a source of profit, or must ours, too, be numbered with the countless horde that serve as beacons to mankind, but still remain unheeded, that all may learn too late for profit, by their own experience?

The Louisville Journal of the 23d has the following paragraph:

The Philadelphia Telegraph of the 20th inst., says that it learns "from private and entirely trustworthy sources," that John C. Breckinridge "intended to leave London on the 12th of the present month for his old home in Kentucky." His "words to our correspondent," continues the Telegraph, "were to the effect that he had 'no more interest in the United States than a dressed up mummy, but he wanted to know all the news.'" Ah, yes! Let our noble friend but once touch the soil of his native State, and we predict that he will prove a very lively "mummy." The Telegraph adds that Mr. Breckinridge "is looking very well, and much younger than he is usually represented." His return would be a joy to Old Kentucky. But is the rumor of his return true? We doubt it.

THE Cincinnati Chronicle, as a matter of news, says:

The President's organ urges the necessity of removing Secretary McCulloch.

And pray which is "the President's organ?" Is the National Intelligencer referred to? It has been customary for organs to consult the wishes of those they represent, before grinding. It is not probable that the President agrees with the Intelligencer, and yet protects McCulloch in office. It is said it was the President's wish that the article of unsurpassed severity should be suppressed, and yet it was not. Does that look much like being his organ?

A Daring and Infamous Act.

The telegraph announces the fact that Sam McKee was yesterday admitted as the Representative of the Ninth District in the face of the large majority by which he was rejected by the people, and in the face of the adverse report of a Radical committee by whom his claims were rejected in March last. Bad as the character of the Congressional majority is, and frequent as the hints of what was coming have been, there is in this act something so utterly corrupt and so defiantly wicked that the whole country will be startled at its accomplishment. In the boldness with which it welcomes all the odium of injustice and all the disgrace of crime it stands without a parallel in the history of legislative bodies. Certainly no deed so lawless and tyrannical was ever done by men claiming to be the representatives of the people in legislating for a government republican in form. The worst usurper that can ever rise up to curse this country may now find abundant precedents in the acts of the Radical party for enforcing his own despotic will as the mandate of law and the wish of the people. Whether the American people retain enough of their forefather's pluck to rebuke this crime against their rights, as "the King's subjects" rebuke the Parliament for its action in the Middlesex election case, remains to be seen. We cannot doubt them when even Thad Stevens, Banks and other Radicals were so disgusted by the shameful knavery that all the bonds of party discipline could not commit them to the vile measure. [Louisville Courier.

A Great General and Why.

The tests of greatness, set up by the present Radical party, will scarcely be accepted by the enlightened critics of the old world who take time to think. For instance the claim that Grant is a great General because he commanded large armies, and lost more men in every battle in which he engaged than the enemy brought against him, will scarcely be conceded anywhere outside of the Radical party. And the capture of Lee's seventeen thousand men, not by fighting but by starving them out, at a cost of one hundred and nineteen thousand lives, is not an achievement Bismarck would rest his reputation upon; nor was Belmont, where the "Great Captain" was seen to make remarkably good time to get out of the way of rebel bullets, such an exploit as Wellington would have pointed to with pride and satisfaction.

Officers high in command are not expected to jeopardize their valuable lives, however, and for that reason Grant had a perfect right to get out of the way at Belmont.

The proof that Grant is a "brave man" doesn't rest on this single instance, where it was clear that he ran away that "he might live to fight another day;" but in the further and more conclusive fact that he generally placed his men in positions where the rebels could mow them down by platoons and companies without incurring any risk on their part, whatever. It is not to be presumed that he ordered his men into any danger he was unwilling to face himself, and, accepting this as true, and comparing his loss of 119,000 men with his adversaries' loss of 17,000, the conclusion is irresistible that his personal jeopardy was tremendous!

But didn't he escape well? On the other side, officers of equal rank were shot down and killed among their men. Leonidas Polk, Albert Sidney Johnston, and Stonewall Jackson, fell in the very storm of battle; but Grant never lost a finger, or even a patch of hide as large as a button! Wonderful, wasn't it? So, it is seen, he is not only a great, but, personally, a very lucky General.

Really, according to the Radical standard, the most illustrious Warrior of the world is ours—and if the critics of the old world refuse to accept the standard, they're blockheads, and that's the short of it.—Cairo Democrat.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Virginia has a State debt of $47,000,000.

—Geo. Peabody is to have a statue near the Royal Exchange, London.

—Parepa is to give six concerts at San Francisco and will condescendingly consent to give two dozen representations of Italian Opera, if $18,200 in gold be subscribed. Why not make it round numbers and say $20,000 at once?

—Brignoli declined singing at Ogdensburg, in consequence of a cold, but the folks said the cold was the consequence of a small audience.

—The population of the chief cities and towns of Minnesota is as follows: Minneapolis, 14,000; St. Anthony, 5000; St. Cloud, 3500; Stillwater, 2500; Hastings, 3500; Red Wing, 4000; Lake City, 3000; Wabasha, 2500; Winona, 12,000; St. Paul, 18,000; Faribault, 4000.

—The Pendleton escort will leave Cincinnati on the 30th. The entire charge of the road from New York and return, hotel accommodations and all, during the session of the Convention, will be but twenty-five dollars.

LIBBY AND ANDERSONVILLE.

A Modern Bastile—Military Benevolence.

Every one has not forgotten the exaggerated representations of Wirz—how he was pen-drawn as an inhuman looking monster, of most hideous and revolting aspect. It was not true, but the country believed it, and attributed to the ruthless turnkey the most atrocious enormities that most extravagant visions of hasheesh and opium would fail to equal. The young men who were arrested at Columbus, Ga., on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Ashburn have a jailor [illegible] The editor of the Atlanta Constitution has been to see him, and on the 23d thus describes him. We give the description, and a sketch of what else was seen during the visit:

On arriving at the Barracks, which are nothing more than a circle of well-built and commodious wooden buildings, enclosing the old race track, we were politely received by Maj. ——, by whom we were treated, throughout, with uniform courtesy. It was not long, however, before another party hove in view and was introduced as Mr. Whitley. The appearance of this man was anything but prepossessing. He is about five feet eleven inches long, and distressingly angular in his physical conformation. Oily, eely and slim; eyes grey and very close together; long, sharp teeth of pearly whiteness; hair so closely cropped that a nit could not hide itself therein; face about the width of a consumptive's hand; knees curved forward and outward; voice and slang that of a down easter; but withal well dressed and excessively affable. This Government Detective struck us at once as the very personification of all that is mean and contemptible. He looked like an escaped convict in disguise, who is laboring under the apprehension that somebody might recognize him.

This individual undertook to show us around in the capacity of turnkey. The prisoners are entirely under his control, and whatever he commands shall be done with them, the military are bound to obey.

We were first invited into an anteroom about ten by twelve, in which were confined five of the Columbus prisoners, including Sergeant Marshall. These seemed to be doing very well. Upon asking one of the number, Lawrence, how he was treated, he replied: "Pretty well, except the confinement." This room was sufficiently ventilated, and the door which opened into a hall filled with soldiers and skirted with guns, was left ajar. We noticed the remains of dinner upon a table, among which were fragments of soda crackers.

Returning to the hall through the same door by which we entered the apartment where the five were confined, a passageway about four feet wide met the view, and ranged along the left wall of which might be seen the line of heavy wooden doors opening into the prison cells. Our turnkey opened No. 1, which contained the person of the prisoner, Mr. Roper. The cell is exactly ten by two 5-6 feet, and answers in every respect to the description heretofore given in this journal. Besides Mr. Roper and Misery, there were in the room a thin mattress stretched on the floor, a tobacco box, a newspaper, and nothing else. It must be borne in mind that the cells were originally ten by six feet, and have recently been divided by a partition, in which there is a small door admitting, when unlocked, of inter-communication. The outer door commands the entrance to both sub-divisions.

No. 2 contained Messrs. Barber and Cash. The former seemed rather uncertain as to our status, and evidently looked upon our visit with suspicion. Nor do we blame him in the least, for it is reported that strange parties have sought and obtained interviews with the unfortunate prisoners. Barber is a trump. He is not a man to be cowed, we think, nor will the Government detectives make much out of him. Wiggins and Wood occupied the remaining cells. The latter has but one arm, and was recognized as a conscript officer on duty at Augusta during the war. The prisoners all complained of having suffered from the excessive heat, but said that they had enough to eat, such as it was.

Messrs. Bedell, Kirsky and Chipley occupy quarters in another building, and are comparatively comfortable. Upon these latter several friends called during our stay.

Not one word was addressed by us to the prisoners in the cells which was not overheard by the detective, who stuck to us like a fly-blister; but he failed to draw us to him. He was, however, very willing apparently to allow the prisoners anything in the way of provisions which friends would send, but added that thus far nothing of the kind had been contributed. He remarked that those in the cell got soldiers' rations. One of them exhibited to us a piece of baker's bread, left over from the evening before, and complained that he could not eat it.

It is not the matter of bread so much that we complain of, as the stifling cells, too small for a pigmy, in which citizens of Georgia are stored away like hogs, and subjected to the vile espionage and insulting overtures of a hireling master in human shape, whose province it is to make money out of the blood of the innocent.

The Eutaw Prisoners.

We have heard from the Eutaw prisoners. The intelligence we have received would be incredible, were it not in keeping with the known facts in this case up to the last previous intelligence from these victims of malice and power.

We know they were arrested, shipped from prison to prison, denied access to their friends, tried and convicted on testimony at once false and insufficient, hurried away in irons without money or clothes or permission to bid their families farewell, and carried off in chains through other States and over unexpected routes, in order to escape the interference of the law; and knowing all this, we can credit the balance. They have been released from the Dry Tortugas; their irons are knocked from their limbs; the task-master no longer follows them at their menial labors; but, instead of being sent home, instead of being sent to the port nearest their homes, they have been carried to Galveston, Texas, and there put ashore, among strangers, without food or money or clothes or acquaintances, to get back to their families if they can, or to starve and die, if the strangers among whom they are cast will permit it.

They will soon be home, however.

Their persecutions have made them friends wherever they go. Warm hearts doubtless received them at Galveston; true men and women doubtless provided for their wants; we suspect they have not had to wait for the money they have telegraphed home for; and soon we may expect them among us.

This is another feather in the cap of Gen. Meade. It is strange that it should be complacently worn by the hero of Gettysburg.—Selma (Ala.) Times and Messenger, 21st.

—Mrs. Eunice Warner, formerly of Great Barrington, Mass., became a mother at thirteen years, a grandmother at twenty-seven, a great-grandmother at forty, a great-great-grandmother at fifty-six, a great-great-great-grandmother at seventy-four years, after which she lived several years. Her descendants must have followed her example very closely! The longest interval was eighteen years. The first born must have been girls, in every instance—a singular instance of regularity of habits and maternal training.

—Wm. Loar, in consequence of financial troubles, hanged himself at Montreal on the 17th.

MEMPHIS APPEAL.

ALBERT PIKE & CO.

Vera Atque Honesta Dicere.

For President of the United States,

ANDREW JOHNSON,

OF TENNESSEE.

Subject only to the decision of the National Democratic Conservative Convention.]

PLATFORM OF THE TENNESSEE DEMOCRACY.

1st. The Conservative men of Tennessee, putting aside all questions decided by the war, accept the title of 'Democrats,' and formally unite themselves with the Democratic party as it now exists.

2d. The question of the right of a State to secede from the Union has been decided by arms, and that decision should be accepted as final and conclusive.

3d. Nevertheless, while the Constitution makes the Federal Government supreme, it is so only with well defined limitations and restrictions, leaving the States large rights and powers over their domestic concerns, and making them co-equal in respect of such rights; and these rights have not been impaired by the result of the war, or the powers of the General Government aggrandized by it, to the endangerment of public liberty.

4th. The extinguishment of African Slavery is recognized as a fact, ratified by a binding Constitutional Amendment.

5th. The investiture of negroes with the right of suffrage, by the Congress of the United States, and the disfranchisement of white men, by the same authority, is a gross usurpation of power, and a policy unjust, unwise and oppressive, and tending to excite a war of races: the white men of America are entitled to superiority and supremacy in the administration of the Federal and State governments; and any measure intended to deprive them of it, or to divide or impair it, greatly endangers the perpetuity of free republican institutions.

6th. The faith of the nation is pledged to the payment of the national debt, according to the terms of the laws under which the bonds were issued, and not otherwise. The time of payment of the bonds ought not to be extended; the principal of the five-twenty bonds ought to be paid in currency, and the money granted to the National banks to be withdrawn.

7th. The Government bonds should be taxed in the hands of the bondholders, equally with other property.

8th. The doctrines and practices of the Radical party, which endeavors, by encroaching upon the powers of the Executive and Judicial branches of the Government, to absorb in the Legislative Department all powers, tend to the destruction of the Republican system of Government and the civil liberties of the people.

9th. Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever State or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none; the support of the State Governments in all their rights, as the most competent administration of our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-Republican tendencies; the preservation of the General Government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of peace at home and safety abroad; a jealous care of the rights of election by the people and the supremacy of the civil over the military authority.

10th. Andrew Johnson the first choice of the Democracy of Tennessee; but their Delegates left free to unite in selecting another as the candidate for the Presidency.

THE COMING CONVENTION.

A National Convention never assembled in this country around which was gathered the thronging hopes of the people, in so great a degree, as that which will convenes in the city of New York on the 4th of July.

The gloom that hangs over the Republic will be dispelled, if the Convention should succeed in harmonizing all conflicting interests, prejudices and passions and presenting for the support of the people names which can happily combine the elements of a successful campaign, and fidelity to the great principles of our Constitution. This will be the great duty of the Convention. Every prejudice should be cast out, every partiality discarded, to assure a harmonious and enthusiastic meeting. The friends of law, order and Constitutional Government should take solemn warning from the disasters that befel the Democratic party and the whole country in consequence of the disagreement at Charleston and Baltimore in 1860. They should see to it that no repetition is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—depended the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people—for many years then to come. Such a forewarning as that should forearm every lover of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerent acts and criminating words. The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly terminate in division or secession. Nor should any delegate incite others to retort or recriminate, by threatening to divide or secede upon any pretext. Where conflicts exist, all cannot expect to be accommodated. And while there shall be a general desire to so act as to consolidate the strength of the opponents of Radicalism and first to slay that modern monster of iniquity, before enforcing any convictions, however earnest, on minor questions, there can be no risk of an abandonment of these convictions by those who desire to carry them out. Unless the Convention shall meet and act in this spirit, we should despair of success. But if it shall come together, act, and adjourn upon this platform, upon which all can stand who desire the overthrow of Radicalism, we are destined to witness the grandest and most gratifying political revolution which any country has ever seen.

There are rare times in the history of peoples, when a pure opposition party, led with irresistible impulse to break down abuses and villainies, that threaten to corrode society and destroy the very landmarks of Government, is necessary for the safety of the nation. If it be even composed of heterogeneous material, aggregated together, but pursuing one common direction in assailing and sweeping down a common obstacle to the progress and welfare of society, it will achieve as great a purpose as though every man wore the same badge and fought under the same banner. For the time, all incongruous elements are combined in chemical union with their opposites, and form a mass of force which no fixed object can withstand any more than the earth-rooted forests can withstand the shock of the tornado.

But let the storm spend its strength, and accomplish its mission of purification, and the elements of power at once dissolve, the clouds disperse and a blessed calm at once prevails, which leaves room for that quiet and sober settlement of existing differences whose agitation before would have been fatal to that consolidated impetus which was required to marshal the forces of destruction against the foe.

We are pleased to have witnessed ample evidences of a disposition to postpone such differences, to a future period, and to sacrifice every discordant suggestion upon the altar of the common cause—a cause at once combining more to energize the action, stimulate the hopes and ennoble the feelings of a great and free people than any which has marshalled its hosts upon the arena of our politics. A special Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier thus alludes to the cordial feeling existing between the friends of two of the most prominent candidates:

Many of Hancock's friends claim for him 280 votes on the third ballot. The kindest feelings prevail between him and Pendleton, and the latter has a high admiration of Gen. Hancock as a statesman. Indeed the record made in Louisiana has been written in such golden letters that no one can mistake the intellectual superiority of Hancock. The letter to Governor Pesse was written without a suggestion from any living soul. The manly sentiments therein expressed have found a responsive echo in the hearts of every American, who believes in the supremacy of the civil over military law. There is a peculiarity of Gen. Hancock, which gains him the reputation of being the only lawyer-soldier of the army. His reasonings are as cogent as those of a practitioner. His solid mind, backed by a heart full of kindness and sympathy for our oppressed Southern friends, will inaugurate a new era of good feeling, should the Democrats make him President, and we should have no autocrat like Grant to subordinate everything to military law or to the dictates of his Radical associates. None of the inhuman vandalism of the war can be laid at Hancock's door. Kind and considerate, his duties were performed in what he conceived to be the proper spirit, a preservation of his Government in the strictly legitimate manner, with all possible amelioration of the horrors of war. Unquestionably Gen. Hancock is the most available and the least obnoxious candidate who has been presented. Always popular with the army, he can carry off more soldiers' votes from Grant than anybody. Always voting the Democratic ticket he is unobjectionable to the masses.

Whilst Grant can be successfully attacked for his want of statesmanship, the unnecessary slaughter of his men, his total incompetency to comprehend civil affairs, and his duplicity and treachery towards the President; there is not a solitary point which can be made against Hancock. The real battle-ground is to be Pennsylvania. With Hancock it is not an extravagant assertion to say that the Democratic majority will roll up to 30,000. It is wiser to underrate one's own strength than that of his adversary. Though hoping other results, it is better to claim and to fight for such States as will sum up a majority of votes, expending our force only on those where reasonable hopes exist. Now, in looking over the field, one suggestion presents itself, which will give use for reflection and action. If we run electoral tickets in the Southern States and the negroes beat us, are we not precluded in law and honesty from contesting the right of the Radicals to count those States as legitimate? Upon the other hand, if we make no tickets therin, every electoral vote will be cast against us and will be received by Congress. We of course claim that each State ought to vote under its old Constitution. Under the Radical programme all the Southern States will participate except Texas. Virginia also will be denied a vote, if her people vote down the black Constitution. Leaving out Virginia and Texas, the electoral college will sum up 300 votes, requiring 151 to elect.

TENNESSEE.

—An election was held at the Courthouse last Thursday for the two offices of Constable in the Ninth District. Doc Gillespie and George Colquit were elected without opposition. The two Radical candidates for these two offices, Hendricks, a white man, and Smith, a negro, were elected at the March election, but they have been unable to give bond. Messrs. Gillespie and Colquit are good officers, as is shown by their appreciative constituency.—Columbia Herald, June 20.

—John W. Thomas, Auditor of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad since the close of the war, has resigned his position.

—The Union and Dispatch of the 23d says: Capt. J. Edward Stacey, Revenue Inspector, has just returned from Knoxville, where he has discovered large frauds in the bonded warehouse of A. Kennedy, Jr., of that city. Suit has been commenced in the United States Court, at Knoxville, against Mr. Kennedy for the forfeiture of his bond.

—The ladies of Madrid Bend sent to Union City a huge cake, to be raffled for, the proceeds to be applied to the expense of removing the Confederate dead opposite Island Ten. It was made in St. Louis and presented to the ladies at Madrid Bend by the officers of the Belle City. Mr. Davis, telegraph operator at Union City, had one of eighty chances, ($40,) and won the cake and gallantly returned it. We understand that it has thrice done similar service.

—The McMinnville Enterprise of the 20th says, of railroad tax: The proposition to levy a railroad tax in the counties of White and Overton for the construction of the Southwestern Railroad, was carried in both counties. The counties of Putnam, Coffee and Warren are yet to vote. We learn through private letters from gentlemen in Putnam, that the prospect of carrying the election in that county is good. We have nothing special from Coffee. As for our county, we feel pretty sure it will carry.

—The Knoxville Herald of the 23d says: Fifty-three students from Washington College, Virginia, passed through the city on Sunday on their way from to spend the present vacation. They were from Middle Tennessee and Alabama.

GENERAL ITEMS.

—"Judy" asks why is the letter U of more value than cream to a dairyman? and answers it—because it makes better butter.

—They have got up a four-legged chicken at Louisville, that moves about like any other quadruped, as if unaware of being degraded from its rang among bipeds.

—Minargent is the name of a new substitute for silver. It is composed of copper, nickel, tungsten and aluminum, and is said to be nearly as white, malleable, ductile, tenacious, and sonorous as silver, while it wears even better, and is less liable to be tarnished and injured by gasses, and less fusible than silver.

—In Siberia the gold fields are free to all. But when gold is found it must be reported to a Russian official, who apportions about four square miles to the finder, and allows him to dig all he will, on condition that the gold is all brought to the mint, to be coined, and fifteen per cent. is paid the Government for expenses.

—The Natchez Democrat of the 18th says: "A list is now prepared at the Natchez Democrat office, of three hundred and seven persons who are believed to be unlawfully registered. Planters and others who have knowledge of the ages and length of residence in the city of any of these persons so registered, are earnestly desired to come and examine the list, so that proof may be obtained in time to prevent the votes of these being unlawfully cast. Already a large number of illegal voters have been caused to be erased from the list. Several are now in jail for perjury, and writs for the arrest of forty-five others are in the hands of proper officers. Let every man who has any knowledge of these matters come forward promptly, and thus render valuable service towards maintaining the purity of the ballot-box and secure the defeat of the Constitution." If such be the condition of things before, what must it be after the election?

—M'Cracken county, Ky., has just voted $500,000 to the Paducah and Elizabethtown Railroad. The election was held on the 20th.

EMMONS & SON received yesterday London Builder for May, Dublin University Magazine for June, Blackwood for June, National Quarterly Review for June, Broadway for July, Beadle's Dime Novel No. 153, Hall's Journal of Health for July, Railroad Guide for July, Turf, Field and Farm, Irish American, Irish Citizen, Artisan, Irish People, Criminal Zeitung, Sketch Book No. 3, and all the dailies. Call at either store, No. 10 Jefferson street or 393 Main street.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure yesterday of taking by the hand our old friends, Col. Jacob Frolich, Jr., of the Searcy (Ark.) Record, Hon. A. H. Garland, Gen. Albert Rust and Thomas Fletcher, Esq., of Little Rock, all of whom are delegates to the National Democratic Convention at New York. They leave the city this morning.

We yesterday met with the Hon. D. B. Turner, of Searcy, Capt. M. P. Sanders, of Helena, and Judge W. W. Drummond, of Arkansas county, Arkansas, en route for New York, for which point they leave to-day.

MEMPHIS LADIES' INSTITUTE.—The examination of the classes of this popular institution closed on yesterday, with credit to both pupils and teachers. The recitations evinced a remarkable degree of proficiency on the part of the young ladies in their various studies, and reflected much credit on the principals, Mrs. Southworth and Mrs. McGhee, who have so successfully conducted this "home institution." The commencement exercises will take place on Monday evening, when diplomas will be awarded to a class of seven young ladies pronounced worthy of that honor.

THE WEATHER.—The weather for the past week has been delicious, the mornings and evenings cool and refreshing, and the middle of the days warm, but tempered by delightful breezes—resembling summer in a more northern climate, at that season, as described by the old or the song-writers, who loved to sing of ballad or brief word painting as it in the summertime, when the leaves "sweete sum[illegible]ge," are long and gre[illegible] this, sitting in an office, surrounded by musty files, spinning out our brains in[illegible] victuals and clothing, as the soft South b[illegible]eeze comes in at the open doors and windows, it seems to bring us a message from beloved scenes, and call us away to the seashore or the forest. The harness in which we have hitherto worked, amid the "fever and fret," the toil and drudgery of a "local's" life, amid the sensations and crimes of the city, or the turmoil and wrangling of politics, becomes galling, and we long to throw it off and hasten away to where we can listen once more to the murmur of the sea, or what is nearest to that, the rustling of the forest leaves. We long to forget and bury the present, and escape, if for only one short hour, and hie off to the "green wood tree," and beneath the wide-spreading, high, overarching branches, lie beside the stream that flows bright or dark in sunshine or in shadow, and watch the waterplants nodding to the current or the breeze that sweeps over the waters fair and free.

IUKA.

The Way to Get There--Who to Go With--B. T. Robson, Esq.--Steffey & Barchus--The Hotel--The Ball--The Ladies--The Crops.

At the invitation of the proprietors of the Iuka Springs Hotel, and in company with quite a delegation of ladies and gentlemen, we found ourselves on the way to this delightful watering place on Thursday last, to attend the opening ball of the season. Armed with the necessary slip of pasteboard, upon which were the sign manuels of Superintendents Ross and Anderson, we found upon seating ourselves in one of the spacious cars of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, that the veteran conductor and car[illegible] ch[illegible] we[illegible] ing[illegible] tai[illegible] sur[illegible] F[illegible] val[illegible] pri[illegible] houses, excites at any time a pleasurable emotion, but the feeling of interest is increased when your road lies upon grounds made historical by the war. Remnants of fortifications, breastworks, block houses and stockades are found every four miles along the Memphis and Charleston road, and it rarely happens that some of your fellow travelers have not taken part in desperate encounters with the enemy at one or all the points above enumerated. Their reminiscences add no little to the pleasures of a ride on this great thoroughfare. After a few hours travel, we arrived at the celebrated Springs, whose reputation is world-wide, and whose miraculous cures are too well known to need comment at our hands. We were met by the hospitable hosts, Messrs. Steffey & Barchus, and after a visit to the Springs, which are numerous and in elegant repair, and a stroll over the handsome grounds connected with the spacious hotel, sat down to a supper which would be no discredit to its author, if manipulated by the great Delmonico himself. At an early hour the ball room of the hotel was thronged with the youth and beauty attracted hither by the good time coming. We are unable to do justice to the pleasures which followed, and are indebted to a friend for the following:

"The 'grand soiree dansante'—the opening ball of the season, and the theme of conversation for a week past—came off last night as punctually as an eclipse of the moon, and like an eclipse offered an opportunity, such as rarely occurs, in which to study and admire the 'oright stars of evening.' By ten o'clock crowds of ladies and gentlemen had assembled at the hotel, and were lounging in the parlors or strolling through the halls in that listless, dreamy way which proceeds the gayeties of a Southern ball—the calm before the storm. New parties constantly arrived and added to the brilliancy of the tableau already dazzlingly beautiful. The fair daughters of Alabama were here, blending their pale lillies with the rich hued roses of Tennessee. The creole beauty of Louisiana grouped gracefully with her no less lovely sisters of Arkansas; and Mississippi's sweet, mild flowers, native to the bower, charmed the beholder with their grace and elegance.

"'The banquet and the wine—
The garlands, the rose odors and the flowers,
The sparkling eyes and flashing ornaments,
The white arms and the raven hair—the braids
And bracelets—swan like bosoms—the thin robes
Floating like light clouds 'twixt our eyes and heaven—
The many twinkling feet so small and sylph-like.'

"All made up a scene so bright that the eye wandered confused, and one felt rather than saw the beauty before him. Presently music, with its 'voluptuous swell,' broke upon the ear, and, like the whispering of an angel, only heard in sleep, recalled the wayward thoughts from dreamland whither they had strayed to the realities of the hour. The joy thereof becoming more animated, drifted into the large, airy ball room, and there under the lamps, laughed, chatted and danced the Goddesses of Earth."

Our memory was ever defective regarding names, and if in the list which follows any of the fair ladies who were present (and we are sure there are many) be omitted, we must only ask their indulgence for our shortcomings. Of the Iuka ladies present, there were Mesdames Jessie Barchus and W. A. Steffey; the Misses Flora Jackson, Rebecca Moore, Jennie Terry, — McKnight, Missouri Purnell, Belle Miller, and the Misses Lackie. Tuscumbia was represented by Misses Sue Patterson, Annie Patterson and cousin. Miss Emma Etheridge, of Dresden, Tenn., was present; also Mrs. Cage, of Courtland, Ala., Mrs. Farrish and Mesdames Newsoms, Cherokee, Ala.; Miss Mollie Lorense, Burnsville; Miss Jennie Moore, Huntsville. Memphis was represented by Misses M. F. Dimitry, Emma J. Wright, Annie Merrick, Fannie Borland, Isadore and Lillian Pike.

Many gentlemen were present from Memphis, and in fact all the cities and towns along the various railroads were represented. We found several citizens of this city permanently located at the Springs for the season, all of whom are delighted with the place and the efficacy of the waters, as well as the superior manner in which the hotel is conducted by its new proprietors.

The crops along the route look well, but are suffering for want of rain, none of which has fallen in the past five weeks. Shocks of wheat dot every field, while the cradle is busy reaping oats. This latter crop does not appear to yield well. It is generally thin and the straw short and stunted. No signs of rust, however, are visible along the route.
